M3C Fellow Program and Access Ambassador Position Description:
The Midwest Campus Compact Citizen-Scholars (M3C) Program is an AmeriCorps Education Award Program. Students who are involved in this program, known as Mentors and Fellows, will receive an education award to use toward tuition, or federally funded student loans, in return for community service. The program strives to develop a peer network, provide support that enables students to serve as agents of civic engagement, to foster a deep appreciation and understanding of democratic values and citizenship among participants, and nurture the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and behaviors that lead to a lifelong commitment to active community and civic engagement. Early College Outreach in the Office of Undergraduate Admissions and First Year Experience (UAFYE) is looking for a diverse group of enthusiastic incoming freshman to serve in the role of M3C Fellows.

At OSU, Fellows serve as Access Ambassadors and will work in the Columbus community to provide service related to the social justice issue of access to education. Access Ambassadors offer on-campus programming to first-generation/minority and/or low-income youth in grades 5-8, helping kids learn the steps to take to get to college and showing them what college life is like. Among other activities, Access Ambassadors will also serve as student panelist for access-related presentations; act as teaching assistants in a community-based program called Blueprint:College; and visit schools in their home and/or Columbus community to share the national KnowHow2Go campaign with underserved youth.
