President Michael V. Drake and Provost Bruce A. McPheron invite you to attend the twenty-first annual, autumn semester, Diversity Lecture and Cultural Arts Series at The Ohio State University. This program offers the campus and the Columbus community opportunities to benefit from some of the most eminent scholars, artists, and professionals who discuss and exemplify inclusive excellence through diversity.

Minnesota’s first African-American Supreme Court Justice, Alan C. Page, was elected to the court in 1992 after serving as an assistant attorney general. He was reelected in 1998 and 2004. Previously he served as a special assistant attorney general and was an associate with the Minnesota law firm, Lindquist and Vennum.

Justice Page is widely renowned for his former career as a professional football player. Having been the first defensive player to earn the regular season MVP Award due to his skillful play with the Minnesota Vikings in the 1970s, he was also elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1988.

Justice Page, who attended law school at the University of Minnesota during the height of his football career, is an ardent defender of equal education for children. He is the architect of the Page Education Foundation, which encourages minority and other disadvantaged youth to pursue post-secondary education through offering a unique blend of partial scholarships, mentoring and service-to-children projects. As part of their “Page Grant” commitment, Page Scholars work with elementary school students as tutors, mentors and role models.

Among one of his highest honors, Justice Page was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom.
