In partnership with The Ohio State University College of Pharmacy, the Charitable Pharmacy of Central Ohio (CPCO) provides free medications and pharmacy services for vulnerable patients in our community living at or below 200% of the federal poverty level. Women-led and operated, this nonprofit pharmacy benefits from a shared faculty position with Ohio State and hosts four advanced pharmacy students per month at its Livingston Avenue location.

CPCO provides a unique opportunity for practitioners to work with an underserved population, and for students to gain important knowledge through this practical learning experience.

Women & Philanthropy at The Ohio State University connects generations of women who make a difference in the world by investing together in the people of Ohio State and their transformational work.

Please join us to learn more about one of our 2017-2018 partners, The Charitable Pharmacy of Central Ohio, and how support from The Ohio State University Women & Philanthropy program will create greater access to care and empower our community’s most at-risk women to live healthier lives.
